(Amended, SG No. 64/2000, effective 1.01.2001, supplemented, SG No 1/2002, amended, SG No. 67/2003, effective 1.01.2004, amended and supplemented, SG No. 57/2006, supplemented, SG No. 105/2006, amended and supplemented, SC No. 113/2007, amended, SG No. 109/2008, effective 1.04.2009, amended and supplemented, SG No. 100/2010, effective 1.01.2011, supplemented, SG No 100/2011, effective 1.01.2012, amended and supplemented, SG No. 99/2012, effective 1.01.2013, SG No. 61/2015, effective 1.01.2016, SG No. 98/2016, effective 1.01.2017 amended, SG No. 99/2017, effective 1.01.2018) (1) (Amended, SG No. 102/2018, effective 1.01.2019, SG No. 77/2021, effective 25.12.2021)□ The amount of pension for contributory service and retirement age shall be determined by multiplying the income on the basis of which the pension is calculated by a percentage:

1. of 1,35 for each year of contributory service without transformation and the relevant proportionate part of this percentage for the months of contributory service without transformation.

2. of 1,2 for each year of contributory service and the relevant proportionate part of this percentage for the months of contributory service - for the contributory service which is the difference between the common contributory service and the service under Item 1.

(2) For persons who have acquired an entitlement to pension under Article 68, Paragraphs (1) and (2), and continue working after acquiring the said entitlement without having been granted a personal pension, the percentage for each year of contributory service past that date shall be 3, and as from 1 January 2012 – 4, and the relevant proportionate part of the said percentages for the months of contributory service. The percentage of each year of contributory service after reaching the age referred to in Article 68, Paragraphs (1) and (2) shall be applicable to the actual calendar contributory service, without conversion, acquired after 31 December 2006.

(3) The income on the basis of which the pension is calculated shall be determined by multiplying the national average monthly contributory income for 12 calendar months prior to the month of granting of the pension by the individual coefficient of the person.

(4) For pensions granted with a starting date before 1 January 2019, the individual coefficient shall be calculated on the basis of the contributory income of the person for three successive years out of the last 15 years of contributory service until 1 January 1997, at the election of the person, and on the basis of the person's contributory income for the period after that date until the date of granting the pension. In the cases where the contributory income of the person until 1 January 1997 is for a period of less than three years, the individual coefficient shall be calculated based on this income. When the individual coefficient for a self-insured person is determined, the income on which social security contributions have been paid shall be taken into account.

(5) For the purpose of calculating the individual coefficient under Paragraph (4), the following shall be determined:

1. the ratio between the average monthly contributory income of the person for the period until 31 December 1996, including the national average monthly wage for the same period as announced by the National Social Security Institute;

2. the ratio between the average monthly contributory income of the person for the period after the 31st day of December 1996 and the national average monthly contributory income for the same period.

(6) The individual coefficient under Paragraph (4) shall be determined by multiplying each of the ratios under Paragraph (5) by the respective number of months for which the said ratio has been established, and by dividing the sum total of the products so arrived by the total number of months included in the two periods. Where the persons have no contributory income after 31 December 1996, the individual coefficient shall be equal to the ratio under Item 1 of Paragraph (5), and where the contributory income falls entirely after that date, the individual coefficient shall be equal to the ratio under Item 2 of Paragraph (5).

(7) The ratio referred to in Item 2 of Paragraph (5) may not exceed the ratio between the maximum contributory income set out in the Public Social Insurance Budget Act and the average monthly contributory income for the country for the same period.

(8) (Amended, SG No. 102/2018, effective 1.01.2019) For pensions granted with a starting date after 31 December 2018, the individual coefficient shall be calculated based on the person's contributory income for his/her contributory service after 31 December 1999 until the date of granting the pension, but for a period of no less than 36 months. Where the person's contributory income after 31 December 1999 is for a period of less than 36 months, the last contributory income of said person before 1 January 2000 shall also be taken into account with respect of the shortfall in accordance with a procedure established with the ordinance referred to in Article 106. Where the person has no contributory income before 1 January 2000 or his/her income before that date is for a period shorter than the one required to reach the 36 months, the individual coefficient shall be calculated based on his/her available income regardless of the period to which said income relates. Where the person has no contributory income after 31 December 1999, the individual coefficient shall be calculated on the basis of his/her last contributory income for the 36 months preceding that date or on the basis of the person's available income where the latter relates to a shorter period.

(9) (Amended and supplemented, SG No. 102/2018, effective 1.01.2019) The individual coefficient under Paragraph (8) shall be calculated by dividing the sum total of the monthly ratios between the contributory income of the person for the month and the national average contributory income for the same month by the sum total of the ratios between the number of working days to which the contributory income of the person for the respective month refers and the number of working days for that month – for all months participating in the calculation of the individual coefficient. The hours worked by the person shall be calculated in proportion to the statutory working hours. The individual coefficient may not exceed the arithmetic mean of the monthly ratios between the maximum monthly amount of the contributory income determined by the public social insurance budget act for the year concerned and the average monthly contributory income for the country for the months after 31 December 1999 included in the calculation of the individual coefficient.

(10) The contributory income on the basis of which the individual coefficient of a person born after 31 December 1959 is calculated shall be reduced as follows:

1. when the individual coefficient under Paragraph (4) is calculated, the contributory income for the months in which the person was insured in a universal pension fund shall be reduced by the income determined on the basis of a coefficient, which is the weighted average ratio for these months between the amounts of the social insurance contributions to the universal pension fund and to the Pensions Fund for Work Category III of the persons born prior to 1 January 1960, according to a procedure established by an instrument of the Council of Ministers;

2. (amended, SG No. 102/2018, effective 1.01.2019) when the individual coefficient under Paragraph (8) is calculated, the contributory income for each month in which the person was insured in a universal pension fund shall be reduced by the income determined on the basis of the ratio for the respective month between the amount of the social insurance contribution to the universal pension fund and the amount of the contribution to the Pensions Fund for Work Category III of the persons born prior to 1 January 1960;

3. (new, SG No. 103/2020, effective 1.09.2021) the amount of the contribution to the Pensions Fund under subparagraphs 1 and 2 shall also take into account transfers from the state budget amounting to 12 percent of the sum of the contributory income of all insured persons for period from 2009 to and including 2015.

(11) The contributory income on the basis of which the individual coefficient of a person born after 31 December 1959 is calculated shall not be reduced where at the date of the order for granting the pension the person has changed his/her insurance under Article 4b. Where at the date of the order for granting the pension the person has resumed his/her insurance in a universal pension fund in accordance with the procedure established by Article 124a, the contributory income shall not be reduced for the months in which the person was not insured in a universal pension fund and the funds accrued on his/her individual account were transferred into the State Fund for Guaranteeing the Stability of the State Pension System. The contributory income of the person shall not be reduced after the transfer of his/her funds under Article 129 (15) to the Pensions Fund or the Pensions Fund for the persons under Article 69, as the case may be.

(12) The minimum amount of the contributory-service and retirement-age pension under Article 68 (1) herein shall be determined by the Public Social Insurance Budget Act.

The recalculation shall be made as from the date on which the application form was filed.

(18) (New, SG No. 102/2018, effective 1.01.2019) In the cases where pensions are amended, recalculated, resumed or re-granted, the individual coefficient shall be calculated in accordance with the statutory provisions in accordance to which it has been determined.

(19) (New, SG No. 103/2020, effective 1.09.2021) At the time of determining the amount of the pension in connection with the calculation of the individual coefficient, account shall also be taken of the number of months during which the person has been insured in a universal pension fund in relation to the total length of said person's contributory service, in accordance with the procedure and in the manner set out in the ordinance referred to in Article 106.
